Harding Calls for Rail Trade Pending Decision by Labor Board

Railroad shoguns today were asked by President Harding to return to work, pending a decision of the sensitive issue by the Railroad Labor Board. Strike leaders who had conferred with the President earlier in the day indicated that the President's new plan would be satisfactory to them. Two men were killed and the sheriff wounded in a riot at Joliet, Ill., railroad yards. E. F.
Grable, head of the Maintenance of Way Union, left for Washington to confer with chiefs of unions not on strike.

Miners and some operators of the COAL central committee field opened a series of conferences at Cleveland in an effort to reach an agreement for ending the strike. One of the first results of the conference was a decision to ask all operators, particularly those of Indiana and Illinois, to join the Cleveland conference. Wednesday, Northern West Virginia operators asked to be taken into the conference. Representatives of the Federal government are present as observers. An epidemic of typhoid has developed in the tent colonies of striking miners near Uniontown, Pa.

Washington, Aug. 7.—President Harding today called upon striking railroad workers to return to work immediately pending a decision by the Railroad Labor Board on the controversial question of seniority rights.
The President addressed telegrams to Bert M. Jewell, chairman of the railway employees, and to T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, advising them of his action in these words:
"Mindful of the pledge of both the executive and the striking workmen to recognize the validity of all decisions of the Railway Labor Board, I am hereby calling on the striking workmen to return to work, calling upon the carriers to return them to work, calling upon both workmen and carriers under law to

R.R. INSPECTORS ATTACKED IN WESTBORO

Westboro, Aug. 7.—Two Boston Albany car inspectors were taxi victims of a savage attack by six unknown men, while the inspectors were repairing a disabled car near the Cedar Swamp section.
Martin Mohan, one of the inspectors, was badly beaten and he was carried to his home after the fight.
The car was originally attached to the "Reef Train," the fact being that piles daily between Chicago and Boston.

Owing to a hot-box the car was dropped on a siding at Cedar Swamp, while the rest of the train continued to Boston.
The inspectors were working on the hot-box when the men suddenly emerged from nearby bushes. Without a word they began to pummel the two inspectors. The latter tried to defend themselves, but they were borne down by weight of numbers.
The engine crew seized from bars and were about to start to the rescue of their mates when the assailants ceased their attack and fled.
Railroad detectives and Westboro police are scouring the vicinity in efforts to apprehend the assailants.

Mrs. Teresa Erano of Battery murder of Michele Scarponi, in the Suffolk Superior Court, to-

Mrs. Erano gave evidence which directly connected three of the defendants with the murder of Scarponi.
These were Mascitti, Simboli and one other, whom she referred to by his first name, Luigi.
In response to questions by Assistant District Attorney Caro, Mrs.
Erano said: "I am the mother-in-

"Why did you do what you did?
I asked him.
"I did not do it. Luigi did it. I fired several shots at Scarponi, but missed him," Simboli replied.
"Again Simboli came to my house and said to me: 'Don't you dare tell what you know. If you do even your own old age will not save you.'
"Under cross-examination by At-

GIRLS' ESCORT IS ATTACKED; 2 HELD

Two young men appeared in Malden District Court today as the result of an attack on a Wakefield man who was escorting three young girls to their homes. The men charged with the attack are Philip S. Crimmins of Main street and Joseph E. O'Brien of Middlesex street, Malden. According to the police,
the three Wakefield girls had missed their last car to Wakefield. They went to a restaurant, where they telephoned a man friend. He came to their rescue with his automobile. The girls climbed in and the car stopped at a nearby garage for gasoline.
While filling the tank the police say several young men who had been hanging around the restaurant jumped on the running board of the machine and passed remarks. In a few moments the driver and the youths were exchanging blows. Patience answered the cries of the brightest girl.

State Officer Ernest Bradford of Bureau will conduct the investigation into the death of young MacCormack, and will probably later charge the operation with townsmen of West Dennis who have sought for some time to have Dr. Hanson conduct his grafting operation elsewhere. They have used the term grafting operations without quotation marks.

In the carefully prepared statement issued by Dr. Hanson, the poor little epitaph which he submitted to the reporter is referred to as a martyr of science.

"I had nothing whatever to do with the actual operation. All I did was to etherize the patient. I am informed that the boy succumbed as the result of a pulmonary embolism, or clot of blood in the lung. That frequently follows a surgical operation."

"It is possible to know that a person has died of pulmonary embolism without an autopsy," he was asked. "Not exactly," Dr. O'Connor admitted. "Yet there are symptoms which give a pretty good idea."

He said he had never before assisted at Dr. Hanson's operation, nor had he been at any of the subsequent operations, were any. He professed to know little of the operations at the bull-graft farm. He never saw the MacCormack boy after he was operated on, but I understood that the operation was a success and seemed to benefit him greatly," he said.

And the loving of a bull calf and the crowing of chickens, the MacCormack boy was operated on July 13. It was right on the heels of an alleged gland operation on Harold P. MacCormack in Chicago, and similar operations.

The experiment on the boy was referred to by Dr. Hanson as "a gland operation destined to go down in medical history as one of the great

FATTY RUNS AWAY

A study of the business of two of Boston's largest milk dealers was ordered today by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, to determine if consumers are being charged excessive prices for milk.

Thomas C. O'Brien, certified public accountant, was ordered to investigate the books of H. P. Hood & Sons and D. Whiting Sons companies.

He recently examined the business of the New England Milk Producers' Association, comprising 20,000 farmers, reporting to the district attorney that the farmers were actually losing money on milk.

Determined to ascertain why Bostonians are paying more for their milk than folks in other parts of the country, Mr. O'Brien ordered a study of the two distributing companies.

"If I find excessive rates are being charged consumers," said the district attorney, "I'll take action without ceremony."

Milk delivered at the present time costs 15¢ cents a quart. It was advanced a cent on July 1. The same grade milk purchased in "cash and carry" stores costs 8 cents per quart.

At the time the price of milk was increased dealers participating in the increase were branded as "price gougers" by Chairman Joseph P. Hittman of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life, in a letter to District Attorney O'Brien.

He said there was no justification for the advance in the price and said it was ridiculous that conditions should exist where a person could buy a quart and a pint of milk in a "cash and carry" store at what a quart cost delivered.

D. Whiting, president of the D. Whiting Sons company, said today that his concern would co-operate with any investigation by the district attorney and Mr. O'Brien in the examination of the books of the company.

Los Angeles, Aug. 7.—Why is "Fatty" Arbuckle selling for the price of the 15¢ meat? That's a question puzzling a lot of folks these days.

Harold is a jumpy and nervous fellow, declared Mr. Schenck, and upon advice of physicians and friends is going to take a trip around the world without attempting to break any records. It is said, but nevertheless he will be back in Los Angeles in seventy days.

HEIRESS IS BRIDE

That Harold Schwarz, factor hand and dishwasher, going as Prince Louis Henri de Chateaufort de Bourdon, duped and married a Dorchester and Taunton girl, as well as two others, at Watervright street, Dorchester, wife No. 3 in the dashing young bigamist list, could not be found today.

It was learned, however, that the Taunton girl, named by the good looks, dashing manner and imposing name of the youth, married him when she was eighteen years old. He was going as a doctor or the name of a Taunton girl, whose identity is now being sought by the authorities, was the third victim of the bigamist.

He met her first while washing dishes in the state hospital for the insane there.

When arrested in New York, wearing the uniform of a Russian general, he declared that he was a European nobleman, and told a lengthy and circumstantial tale of his life and his past.

The dishwasher "prince" had a liking for New England girls. Three of them were picked as his brides. He married a New York girl, who was employed in the laboratory of one of the state hospitals, and a girl from the state hospital for the insane there.

GREECE DENOUNCED BANKS AS "ROBBERS OF WIDOWS"

ATTACKS USED AS 'BAIT'

Told Investors State Street Too Conservative to Reap Harvest on Autos

Henry Vincent Greene and State Street were not friends. When the auto jokers began to make financial territory he immediately "panned" the bankers and they didn't like it.

Henry, they said, was an upstart, a wild man. But when the concocter of toothsome sundries got going, and his financial children began to multiply so rapidly it looked like Henry had founded a financial foundation any day, it was whispered the bankers got a bit nervous and wanted Henry removed into their presence as a true dealer. The boy, who had an air of a Greek, however, turned on the bankers and waved them aside as an empty office boy.

RAWLED OUT BANKERS.

In fact the "Prophet" blithely added to them as "shylocks" and "usury robbers."

When he formed his Commercial Finance Corporation it was for the purpose, he said, of financing the selling end of the automobile industry. In his little black book, the "Book of Promises" he incorporated the paragraph which sums up his idea of State Street and the bankers: "Finance men who could have furnished the money and should have done so, did nothing. They were too 'conservative' to recognize a new industry."

Then Henry reviewed the automobile industry, explained how cars would be sold on the partial payment plan and told his book for the fish who expected to take out their own jobs. Henry's savings Henry promised by buying stocks in the Commercial Finance Company, announced expressly to handle automobile business. Write Henry.

STATISTICS AS BAIT

"Statistics show us that there are over 5,000,000 rich people in this country," Henry said, "and in this country. Many of these have, and more of them will, several cars, each of a different type and for a different purpose." Henry had half a dozen cars for his several individual purposes at the time, in fact he had one for every day in the week. Naturally he judged others to be the same.

"We have," continued Henry, "carving the bait most carefully, about 5,000,000 farms in the United States. Many farmers already have cars, but only a few compared with the many who will have them as soon as they have been convinced of their utility value aside from pleasure. The farmer is a practical person and 'must be shown.' Give him the car and the automobile will prove itself to him."

Henry reached for another book. PUBLIC LEAPED AT BOOK.

"There," wrote in the little black book, the book that 40,000 told him Henry and his companies for $14,000,000, discovered, to be the "Book of Revelations," "we have

HERE'S HENRY'S BLACK "BOOK OF PROMISES"

AS ALLURING AS ITS HOLDER

Pretty little Peggy Liden is holding H. V. Greene's "Book of Promises" as lightly as the 40,000 investors, now suing him for their $14,000,000, hold the promises contained therein. His salesmen carried copies of the book and by preaching its will to the land of financial folk and Henry recruited the great army of new relations followers for the prophet. The book will be exhibited in court.

several million persons who cannot be classed among the rich, but who are in such reasonably comfortable circumstances that gradually they will become owners of popular priced cars.

"When read in the vineyard to the salesmen by Henry's disciples, Henry's subtle figures, his hints at the book, have been at hand, his stir on the bankers were all as detectable to the multitude as the southernmost corner of the marble counter at the "Pensions of Knowledge" in the Roxbury drug store.

In case millions of dollars and Henry walked through State Street, or Boston Avenue, through with a powerful smile for the most he could "shylocks" and "robbers of widows."

SCORNS STATE STREET.

Hadn't he shown them how to be the common folk's? Wasn't he "enriching their masses?"

"These they sit," named Henry, "reeling by the predatory banks, 'four and a half per cent. premium' if they had only asked off millions when they only asked the brains to write a little book I did, should have given them four 'a' a half per cent. It takes a genius to produce a seven."

"Too bad the boys didn't have an ice-cream 'duration' and Henry puffed at a perfect and rolled on.

DR. SUN AFFLICTED - WITH MENTAL ILLS

London, Aug. 7.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, former head of the Southern Chinese government, is suffering from mental ill health which has already required the attendance of two foreign brain specialists, says a Hongkong dispatch to the Daily Telegraph. The correspondent describes Dr. Sun as exhibiting impotent authority from the cruel Wingfung, anchored off Shanghai, in Canton harbor, but depending on him for his very existence upon the successful return of his northern expeditionary force, which Chen Chuang-shing is slowly breaking up.

10,000 PERISH IN TYPHOON IN CHINA

Hong Kong Aug. 7 (By the Associated Press).—Casualties in the typhoon and tidal wave which last Wednesday swept the port of Swatow, 250 miles north of here, now are estimated at 10,000.

Another British steamer, in addition to the two previously reported ashore, was bound from Hong Kong to Shanghai when she met the fury of the typhoon and was wrecked, but her passengers were saved.

Devastation hovers over the ruined city and heron haunts its streets. It is estimated that more than 75 per cent. of the city's buildings were destroyed, including the silk knitting factories and the old German consulate.

The American consulate and the Standard Oil Company's warehouse were slightly damaged.

The police frustrated an attempt to loot the offices of the Banque Industrielle du Chine, arresting two men.

To all appearances Swatow is the scene of a devastated town—one heap of ruins.

GRAND JURY PROBE OF GREENE UNLIKELY

Local Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien intimated today when the Suffolk Grand Jury convened for its August session that Attorney General J. Weston Allen would not ask to have presented "any matters to the jury. It had been rumored that Mr. Allen would present evidence against Henry's trust companies, their officials, public officials, deposed bankers and probably ask a probe of the Henry V. Greene Companies.

Ranks Thinning, R. I. G. A. R. Merges Posts

Providence, R. I. Aug. 7.—Unable to hold further meetings of the individual posts of the G. A. R. because there are not enough members left to make a quorum, surviving veterans of the Civil War in Rhode Island met at Rocky Point today to form a State Veterans' Association.

Four posts surrendered their charters during the past six months and others plan to do likewise. The men who fought to save the Union in '61-65 met in regimental groups in Exchange place this morning to board the cars for Rocky Point. The largest group did not number more than ten.

State and city officials and thousands of citizens gave the veterans an enthusiastic greeting.

LEGERE QUILTS PKCT PLAN IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Aug. 7.—The twentieth week of the strike of cotton mill operatives in this city opened peacefully today, despite the promises of 400 operatives yesterday to meet Ben Legere at the mill gates and "go to jail for violating the injunction against picketing."

About 300 pickets showed up at the mill gates, but Legere did not appear to lead them. The operatives who have gone to work on the terms offered were permitted to enter the mills without interference on the part of today's city Marshal T. O'Brien, who had a strong police guard out, dismissed it.

Legere, leader of the One Big Union movement, is understood to have gone to Boston to communicate with stockholders in the local cotton mills. He hopes to have those money invested in Lawrence mill property bring pressure on the officials of the corporations to stop the strike.

ALLIES BEGIN 18TH PARLEY IN LONDON

International News Service

London, Aug. 7.—The thirteenth inter-Allied conference, since the Treaty of Versailles was signed, opened here today. On the agenda hangs future Anglo-French concert and the possibility of Germany being dragged back from the verge of bankruptcy. The United States is not represented.

Premier Lloyd George of Britain will lead a vigorous attempt to settle the German indemnity issue for all time. Other British officials fear a deadlock with France insisting on the right of independent action against Germany to enforce her demands. The proposed moratorium for Germany was the first question on the agenda.

It is believed Premier Poincare brought with him from Paris a program for dealing directly with Germany, although there appeared to be ground for the opinion he was prepared to abandon his proposals for debt cancellation in view of the refusal of the United States to do so. It was learned that Premier Lloyd George spoke in favor of an indemnity moratorium for Germany. His object is said to have been supported by the Italians, Belgians and Japanese.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst, Esq., No. 125 Riverside Drive, New York City.

My Dear Mr. Hearst:

You have been a constant and effective support of the public interest in the city of New York. You have been a constant and effective support of the public interest in the city of New York. ROUGH LOOKING AUTOIST BOOZE BUYER WAS A COP

Paul Klingham of Morris street, Roxbury, and Alexander Rosenberg, Smith street, a cobbler, sold liquor, it is alleged, to a rough-looking workman on Saturday afternoon and now they are in trouble. For the "workman" was none other than Officer O'Malley of the Roxbury station.

Today the men are arraigned in Roxbury court, charged with illegal sale. This is Paul's second appearance on a like charge, recently having paid a fine of $200. In both instances the "proppers up" were Officers Mahoney and Perry of the liquor squad. In Rosenberg's case, it is claimed 135 pints were found.

Thomas Thornton, colored, of Woodbury street, was arraigned on similar charge. It is alleged that he sold a pint to Annie Henley of Roxbury for 75 cents.

Lawrence was thrown to the ground by the impact and it is heard he suffered a fractured skull. Burke's automobile caught fire. Both machines were badly damaged. The injured man's machine had a Maine registration.

Sergeant Dickenson and a squad of patrolmen from the Roxbury station today raided a house on Bowser street, and seized a fifty-gallon still, a thirty-gallon still and a large amount of liquor and paraphernalia. The house is untenanted in the three hours of the night.

BLAME HOTEL FOR DEATH OF WOMAN, BEATEN BY CLOCK

HUSBAND FLEES AS WIFE DIES

Management Does Not Interfere When Told Everything is All Right

New York, Aug. 7.—Observance of the universal hotel code that what a guest does is all right so long as he does not unduly disturb the neighbors to-day was partially blamed for the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Dunsberry of Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Dunsberry was slain with a heavy alarm clock, with which her skull was crushed and her features battered.

The murder came about as the result of a violent quarrel when Mrs. Dunsberry was about to leave the city to attend the funeral of her grandfather at Auburn, N. Y.

After slaying his wife, following bitter altercations lasting several hours, Dunsberry had left the room, leaving the door ajar.

The once comely woman lay for hours on the floor after being struck down, crying for her desperate wounds before the husband left.

The quarrel of the Dunsberrys began about eight o'clock at night, according to Charles L. Young, proprietor of the Cafe Francaise on the ground floor of the building, who sent Robert Goodright, a waiter, upstairs to find the cause of the trouble. Dunsberry, answering the waiter's knock at the door, on learning the nature of the waiter's errand, slammed the door in Goodright's face.

The water, however, saw Mrs. Dunsberry on the floor bleeding. Mrs. Young later went up to offer her aid, but Dunsberry told her "nothing was the matter," although the victim was unconscious at the time. Young himself went up at midnight, when Dunsberry told him "she all over." Dunsberry was not without help.

Natalie Hammond to Be Widely Feted Bud Next Winter, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND are said to be having no end of fun redecorating their beautiful Summer place at Oyster, which they are having completely done over.

During the process of renovation, the prominent Washingtonian and his wife, together with their daughter, Miss Natalie Hammond, are living in the Ryan cottage on the hill overlooking their own home. Mr. Hammond's sister, Miss Elizabeth Hammond, is with them as usual for the Summer, after spending the Winter in her native California.

Last Winter the Hammonds started on a trip around the world, but the sudden illness of Mr. Hammond necessitated their hurried return to Washington before their journey was fairly begun. The Hammonds, by the way, are not as much in the capital as they were during the Taft administration, but the return of the Republican party to power brings back their interest.

The youthful daughter of the house is having a very gay season of it, for she is to be one of the "debbies" of the coming Winter, and already her parents have given a number of jolly entertainments in her honor. She will undoubtedly be one of the most widely-feted buds at the capital, where she will be presented later on. Just at present she has as her house-guest Miss Lucy Anderson of New York and New Orleans, a schoolmate at Hotton-Armies School in Washington, D. C.

SPEAKING of the Hammonds, young Mr. Hammond, Jr., is living in his bungalow and laboratory situated on the rocks near the big house. I understand that he is working very hard on his new discovery, a secret radio communication, which makes it possible for two people to talk through space without anyone else "listening in."

Living with Mr. Hammond is Leslie Brewster, the famous author of "Ambulance No. 19." The latter is an actor as well as a writer, and is vice president of the players of the Playhouse-on-the-Moore, which is fast growing to be a club of note. Already, members of the Summer colony along the North Shore find themselves with eager interest in the performances which they put on. A few weeks ago, when a group of three plays were presented there, an unusually large and enthusiastic throng of the Shore's fashionables turned out for the occasion.

MENTION of Mr. Brewster's name brings to mind the fact that the well-known author will recite the open air concert to be given next Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. Jefferson Colledge at Conditte Point, Massachusetts. The Colledge estate is a splendid place for an affair of this sort, as there is a covered loggia in front of the house and then a long terrace sloping down to the water's edge. John Barclay, noted English baritone, will sing at the concert, which promises to be one of the most fashionable events of the season along the North Shore. Among the patrons on the committee with Mrs. Colledge are the Melvins Tom Gannett, Jr., George E. Warren, Clay Waring, S. V. R. Crosby and Jonathan S. Raymond.

EVEN the lowly "hot-dog" had its day at the opening of the mammoth street fair held at Southwington, L. I., for the benefit of the Hampton Hospital.

The very many society folk who have been working for weeks to make a success of the fair did not, of course, rely solely upon the rather gleeful form of nourishment mentioned above to make a success of the event. There was abundance of things to amuse the throngs attending the fair.

There was a boomerang, a "hoola," a "chirigie," a dancing pavilion, a merry-go-round, boxing bouts, a circus, Egyptian jalmies, who vied with Indian seers, a farm booth where the freshest of vegetables, eggs and fruits might be purchased, and in charge of each feature was some matron or her daughter prominent in the smart set.

Why not state something of this sort at the North Shore? During the Winter there is such a frightful deluge of charity functions that almost everyone becomes weary of them. But in the Summer time, affairs of this sort are few and far between, and it seems to me that a good many more ready "customers" might be found for them.

UP in the White Mountains for a brief visit are Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden and Mrs. Charles Hammond, both of Chestnut Hill, who are stopping at the Mount Washington at Bretton Woods.

SPENDING the Summer at Ipswich on the North Shore is Miss Consuelo Bates, daughter of Mrs. Armistead Baxley. Miss Bates, whose former home was in Boston, now lives on Park avenue, New York.

CRIPPLE 39 YEARS WILL WALK AGAIN New York, Aug. 7.—Confined to a wheel chair for thirty-nine years, Frederick W. Hign, fifty-three, of Middlebury, Vt., will walk his first steps on August 11. He became lame at the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled.

A plaster cast that has encased Hign's legs will be taken off on that date. Then, surgeons state, the man will be able to walk. Hign was stricken with infantile paralysis when fourteen years old. He has remained in a crouched position. A series of operations have been performed.

FORTUNE WON BY WEDDING, SAYS BRIDE

Mrs. Martin H. Rosenk, Boston girl, was involved into marrying Meyer Rosenk of Plymouth for the sole purpose of enabling him to receive his father's fortune, under the will that compelled him to marry a Jewess.

Such is the startling claim advanced by Mrs. Rosenk in her petition for annulment of the marriage, filed with the clerk of the Superior Court of Plymouth.

The petitioner claims that they were married about June 15, 1922, in Boston, and that they have not lived as husband and wife since the wedding. It is further claimed that the respondent induced her to enter into the wedding under fraud and misrepresentation, in that he claimed to love her and expressed the intention of "being a good husband."

But the bride of less than two months was deceived, she claims. Rosenk, as beneficiary of his father's legacy only if he married a Jewish girl. Mrs. Rosenk avers that the husband did not love her, but simply married her so that he would come into the terms of the will and receive the legacy.

It is further declared that the fact appears that the respondent is named as a beneficiary under the will of his deceased father, David Rosenk, late of Plymouth, and under the terms of the will the son was due to receive a substantial legacy bequeathed to him in the event of his marrying a girl of the Jewish faith, the petitioner being of that faith.

Mrs. Rosenk further contends that since the pretended marriage ceremony the respondent refused to see or converse with her and live with her as her husband and that the pretended marriage ceremony was contracted by Mr. Rosenk for the sole purpose of defrauding the petitioner of her inheritance. The declaration is dated July 8, 1922, and is returnable in the court today.

MOTORLESS PLANES MAKE POOR SHOWING Casablanca, Morocco, France, Aug. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Motorless airplanes were the only machines to take the air today in the international gliding contest at Casablanca, Morocco. They made a rather poor showing on account of the stillness of the atmosphere. The best machines made flights of from forty-five to fifty seconds, and none covered a distance exceeding 1,000 yards.

The Apostle Spoons

"APOSTLE SPOONS," called also "gossip spoons," were gifts of spoons by the sponsors or "gossips," to a child at its christening. These were so called because each spoon had a figure of an apostle on the handle.

For several days he remained there, declaring to her that he was tired after his long journey. He explained that his business had not been very profitable, and appeared disappointed. Madame Dubouche's clothes he had added to his strange collection of souvenirs of his fiancée, and which he kept in secret out at Neuilly.

He was still careful not to be seen about Paris in the daytime, for although Inspector Gaffiot might pretend that he had relinquished the search for the fiancée knows who is watching. Personally, I think it is a danger to me to say you."

"I am wary, never fear," laughed Landru. "After half a century of being chased, I have learned to be wise."

"I question it. That incident when you escaped that night from the police station, was it not a deal of unwelcome inquiry into my own doings, and I confess I am not sure I was wise?"

"Bah!" laughed the great lover. "So long as we keep apart there is no harm. I am not a spy, and I feel I always win. I am under the name of Guillet."

Soon Landru, his hands low again, set his shrewd wits to work to meet yet another counter-attack. The result of his mental agility was that he had always been in reserve. He never went forward, but he was always waiting another riddle to put on the place to test and foiled and cross the wits of his opponent across his lips.

The case of Madame Huisson, which was a little more serious, would rise against him, was the same as the last.
